

Sing & See

THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW WAY TO SHOW YOUR STUDENTS HOW TO SING BETTER

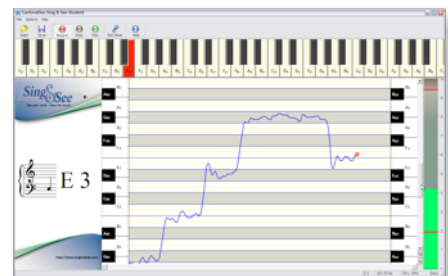

Sing & See enables you to actually see your voice on the computer screen. The singer and teacher can instantly see what's being sung – and make sense of it in a musically relevant framework. This direct visual feedback enhances the spoken feedback that teachers can give their students, and allows singers to see patterns in their voices that they may otherwise not be able to perceive.

As a singing teacher, you know how difficult it can sometimes be to get students to understand what they need to do to improve their voices.

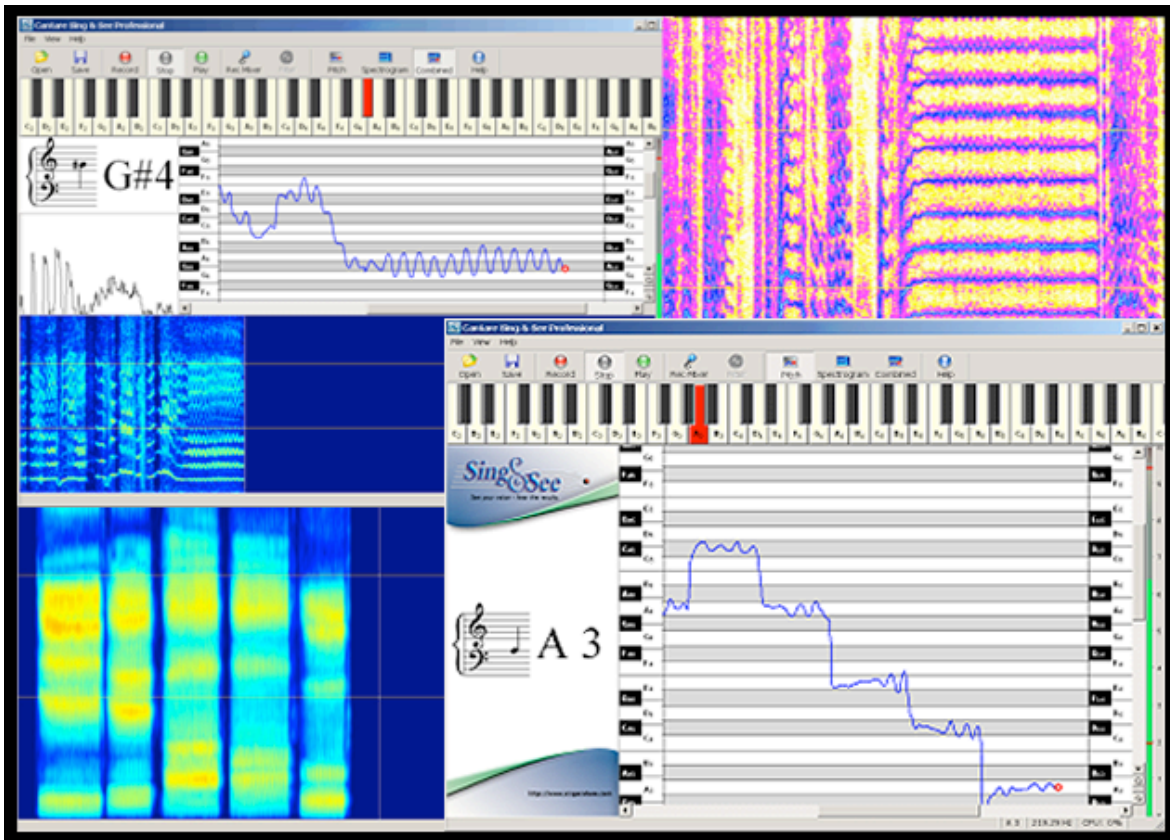

With Sing & See, singers can actually SEE how their voice performs, while they are singing. This direct visual feedback has been proven to improve learning of singing skills¹.

This helpful teaching tool enhances the learning experience by providing a direct visual representation of the student's singing – complementing and enhancing the teacher's verbal feedback and allowing the student to gain a richer understanding of the voice.

Using easy-to-understand and musically relevant visual displays presented on a computer screen, singers can monitor pitch, loudness, and vocal timbre – gaining both positive reinforcement of correct technique, and highlighting areas that need further practice.

What is Sing & See?

A simple-to-use computer program designed for professional singing teachers to help their students literally 'see' how their voice sounds.

How does it work?

As the student sings, the program records and instantly converts the vocal sound into visual graphs shown on screen. These easy-to-follow graphs depict important singing characteristics such as pitch, tone, and volume. The play back facility enables both teacher and learner to identify specific areas for enhancement.

How can it improve a singing lesson?

Essentially, it enriches communication between teacher and student by providing a complementary way to convey feedback on singing technique.

Benefits for singing teachers

- helps students to gain a deeper understanding of the voice
- provides real-time information that is relevant and easy to understand
- reinforces the teacher's spoken feedback in an impartial manner
- complements traditional teaching methods with precise information
- provides unambiguous feedback on pitch accuracy
- shows rich detailed information on vocal quality including resonances, formants, twang, breathiness, voice onset, vibrato, and much more.
- leads to improved learning outcomes during lesson time

Benefits for singers

- can literally 'see' how their voice sounds
- clearly identifies strengths and weaknesses in technique
- improve pitch control and accuracy
- help reach full singing potential
- gain a better understanding of teacher's direction
- watch and listen to replays of their own performance
- singers can see clearly how they sing each note and so learn to hear themselves better
- enjoy more productive singing lessons
